Using technology to teach and assess

In this highly interactive session participants will be using technology to reflect on the different types of assessment and the benefits they bring as they try out a couple of tools which are appropriate for low-tech contexts. We will also be thinking about how to turn assessments into valuable information to help both learners and teachers move forward.

Hello! Ciao! Bonjour! ¡Buenos Días!

In this global age we are becoming more and more aware of different cultures and languages. This session will focus on how such an awareness can help 4-10 year old pupils develop their language learning skills. Participants will experience how a trip around the world can enable children to value diversity and to learn English in an inclusive, all-embracing atmosphere.

Macbeth*: portraying performances

The larger-than-life characters from Macbeth, the swinging between the natural and supernatural, have long attracted artists to metamorphose them into pictures and portraits. This seminar follows their styles, perceptions and interpretations from Füssli and Blake onwards as they record changing tastes in characterization and performance. Suggestions will also be made for using the material in CLIL structured lessons.

Learning-centred dynamics: 5 minute lesson plans

In this seminar we will discuss ideas about how the 5 minute lesson plan can help us organize learning-centred lessons and courses creatively and efficiently. We will be exploring ideas including 'the big picture', 'objectives', 'engagement', 'stickability' and 'differentiation'. For scuola media and superiore teachers.
